Become a Cub

The Adventure of Scouting for our youngest members

Play and have fun

– every week!

We, the cubs, are the youngest members of the German Association of Guides and Scouts. We meet once a week: We play, we build things, we discover nature and spend time outside. We dress up or sing together. And even though we often play wild, we are always considerate of the others and help each other. You can recognise us by our yellow scarves and our blue shirts. Every pack – that is what we call the groups of our age group – has a group leader.

Here comes the pack!

On the weekends, we take trips and discover new places together with our pack, and sometimes also with the older scout groups! We sleep in tents or sometimes in a house. We're outside in the fresh air, having adventures that we couldn't have at home. We make new friends, and there is nothing like crawling into our sleeping-bags after a long day in the open air. By the way, we don't only take trips on the weekends, but also during the holidays.

Cubs

The name for the groups of seven to eleven year old children is "cubs". They have taken this name and other terms for life in their group, or pack, from Rudyard Kipling's "Jungle Book". Like the character Mowgli from the book, they learn to find their place in the group, to stick to the group's rules, to take on tasks, to be considerate and tolerant to others but also to give free range to their imagination. Once a week, the cubs get together for a pack meeting.

Playing

Cubs love boisterous games. They like to dress up and make use of almost anything to build and create things. On short trips, they discover their surroundings and in camps, they find out about new places.

Neckerchief and Wolf's Head

And how do you recognise the cubs?
By their yellow scarves and the wolf's head on their shirts.

Join in

If you are between seven and eleven years old, come and visit us! On www.pfadfinden.de, you can find the nearest group by using the search for local groups („Ortsgruppen“).
